GERMAN ASSAULT ON LENINGRAD

CITIZENS PREPARE FOR RESOLUTE DEFENCE

THE silence shrouding operations on the Leningrad front was broken last night by reports from Axis sources that the battle for the Soviet's second city has begun. The Berlin Correspondent of the Stockholm "Dagbladet," quoting "well-informed circles" in the German capital, says the Germans claim that already their troops have penetrated the outer defences at several points, and that advanced units are "in the vicinity of the city." The "final assault" may be expected at any moment, these circles affirm.

A Berlin spokesman said yesterday that the most advanced German units were standing before Krasno Gvardeisk, twenty miles south-west of Leningrad.

A despatch from Leningrad to Moscow said the city was becoming like the front line zone, with parks and gardens lined with trenches and the streets filled with troops and munition lorries. Leningrad, preparing for unyielding defence, was imposing a rigid black-out.

The German News Agency claimed last night that Rumanian troops have captured the waterworks outside Odessa.

The Soviet communiqué this morning states:—"On September 2 our troops continued to fight stubbornly against the enemy along the whole front. After fierce fighting our troops evacuated the town of Tallinn."

"GIGANTIC BATTLE"

The Berlin correspondent of the Gazette de Lausanne says that the Germans launched the assault on Leningrad during a "gigantic battle," but it is significant that neither the German High Command nor other official German sources mention the fighting. Nor are these German claims mentioned by the Berlin correspondents of Dagens Nyheter and Stockholm Tidningen, who reiterate earlier reports that incessant rain is hampering operations, and mention continued fighting on two sectors where the Germans appear to have been "bogged" for some time.

These two sectors are south of Lake Ilmen and north of Novgorod. In the Lake of Ilmen operations the official German News Agency admits bitter Russian resistance and "bloody hand-to-hand fighting" in the invaders' attempt to strike eastwards against the important Moscow-Leningrad Railway. West of Novgorod, and still almost 100 miles from Leningrad, the German Agency declares that after fighting their way through boggy forests and sodden fields, with roads made almost impassable with rain, German troops routed Soviet forces in a battle north of Luga.

South of Kiev, says Berlin, the Red Army attacked German positions after artillery preparation and supported by tanks. It is claimed that the move was repulsed, and that the German forces proceeding immediately to the counter-offensive penetrated deep into the Soviet lines and captured 1,200 prisoners and destroyed nine tanks.

German officials deny again that further south the Russians, despite continued attempts, have regained the western bank of the Dnieper. Marshal Budyenny's apparent aim there is not so much to cross himself as to smash German efforts to establish "spring-boards" from which to launch the desired drive to the industrial wealth of the Donetz basin.

A correspondent of the Italian News Agency at the front says, however, that Marshal Budyenny continues "attempts to regain the offensive," and adds that the Marshal, "making strenuous efforts to re-establish bridgeheads on the west bank of the Dnieper, his troops this morning returned to the charge, when at least 15,000 troops attempted to cross the river, defying dive-bomber attacks and intensive fire from German heavy artillery." The correspondent adds that the attempt was "repulsed with heavy Soviet losses."

German dive-bombers sank a Soviet monitor and six lighters in the Dnieper River on Monday, says the German Agency.

BALTIC FORCES

Berlin also reports that German naval forces in the Baltic are being used to cover the northern flank of the advance on Leningrad. They are stated to have "brought up reinforcements by sea according to plan, and without any losses worth mentioning." The German Agency also claims that the Red Fleet destroyer Straschny was sunk by a German mine off Oesel Island, the Soviet stronghold near the Estonian coast.

Of the operations north-west of Leningrad, Swedish correspondents in Finland say that the Russians are now holding the "Stalin line" across the Karelian isthmus. The Finns claim to have captured Sakkola, about 50 miles south-east of Viborg, and to have reached Taipale, just east of Sakkola.

Messages reaching Stockholm disclose further admissions in Berlin that the Red Army is launching non-stop counter-blows on the central front, though they have not, it is asserted, "reached their goal." This in itself, says Reuter, is a confession of some anxiety for the forces holding this exposed salient backing on the Pripet marshes. The sustained and heavy support being given by the Luftwaffe to Von Bock's forces in an effort to relieve the Red Army's pressure indicates, too, that the German High Command scents danger.

THE ODESSA FRONT

In the Ukraine the siege of Odessa appears to be going badly for the Germans and their assistants, says Reuter. A correspondent of the Milan Stampa writes from the front that the conclusion of the siege cannot be expected in the near future. "The Bolsheviks dispose of an enormous mass of artillery, machine-guns and small bombs, which are very effective in this short-range battle. The majority of Rumanian losses were due to the employment of these bombs," said the correspondent.

M. Lozovsky, the Soviet official spokesman, yesterday denied reports that negotiations had started for a separate Russo-Finnish peace, and Swedish correspondents in Berlin said that authoritative circles there describe the Finnish peace rumours as merely "poor intrigue."

Mr. Cordell Hull, United States Secretary of State, has denied that he had information to the effect that Mr. Winant, American Ambassador to Great Britain, would act as intermediary in an attempt to end the Russo-Finnish hostilities.

IRISH STEEL INDUSTRY

POSSIBILITY OF RESTARTING

THE conference of representatives of public bodies and industrialists, to consider the possibility of continuing the Irish steel industry at Haulbowline, sat at Cork yesterday, and decided that further steps towards resuming the industry should be left to Mr. W. Dwyer, managing director, Sunbeam Wolsey, Ltd., Cork, and Mr. A. P. Reynolds, of the Dublin United Tramways Company.

The Lord Mayor (Mr. J. J. Horgan), who presided, said that the previous conference had asked the heads of various industries to interest themselves in the matter, and the impression they got from the bank was that it would be prepared to deal favourably with the resumption proposal. They were also quite satisfied that the plant was a most up-to-date one, and should be kept intact at all costs. They were given to understand that £25,000 local capital was available, and the Government would also give a loan.

NEED FOR STEEL

With the pressing need for steel it would be a sad state of affairs if the mill were to be closed permanently. Even if it could not be used to meet all national needs, there was sufficient scrap in the country that could be usefully employed at the mills. There would be a big demand for steel after the war, and, though he had heard it suggested that dumping might be used to hamper this industry later, he was confident the Government would not permit such a thing. An attempt something like that was made when the cement industry started, but it did not succeed.

Mr. J. Murphy said it was a question of either throwing the project overboard or re-starting it, and he suggested it should now be put into the hands of men who had shown themselves capable of carrying on big undertakings. He proposed that Messrs. W. Dwyer, of Sunbeam-Wolsey, and A. P. Reynolds, of the Dublin Tramways, be asked to form a company to take over the mills, and get them started at once.

Mr. A. Dinan seconded.

Mr. D. McCaffrey said that at meetings of the Contractors' Federation he had advocated that every support should be given to this project. He was speaking for 250 contractors, who were quite prepared to give the project their very best support.

INVESTIGATIONS

The Lord Mayor pointed out that the former company had not failed in the ordinary way, but because they met very adverse circumstances, having started just prior to the war.

Mr. W. Dwyer said that he had discussed the project with Mr. Reynolds, and they saw the receiver, Mr. Crowley. Mr. Reynolds and himself would be quite prepared to do anything they could to restart the steel mills on condition that they would be absolutely satisfied that it could be started as business proposition, but they would not do so if they thought they were persuading people to put money into a company that would not have a hope of paying after the war. They must know how much money would be available to start the industry again, and see if it were possible to form a company, and they would then be in a position to go to the Minister for Industry and Commerce and ask what he would give. They would do all they could to form a company which could be operated successfully during and after the war.

Mr. W. T. Cosgrave, T.D., said that there was hardly any likelihood of dumping after the war.

The Lord Mayor, declaring the proposal carried, expressed confidence in Messrs. Dwyer and Reynolds, and the conference also agreed to the following expression of opinion:—"That our own Government should make every effort to obtain steel to fill the requirements of builders and others depending on it."

ATTACK ON COLONEL MOORE-BRABAZON

British Labour Leader on A Reference to Russia

THE views of Colonel Moore-Brabazon (British Minister of Aircraft Production) on Russia were the subject of an animated discussion at the Trade Union Congress, at Edinburgh yesterday.

Mr. Jack Tanner, President of the Amalgamated Engineering Union, accused Colonel Moore-Brabazon of having expressed the hope that the Russian and German Armies would exterminate each other, while the British Commonwealth built up a dominating position in Europe.

Mr. Tanner's allegations are supposed to have arisen from a passage in a recent extempore speech of Colonel Moore-Brabazon, which, according to an official statement made last night, "was open to misinterpretation."

OFFICIAL STATEMENT

The Ministry of Aircraft Production last night announced:—

"The statement alluded to by Mr. Tanner evidently refers to a passage in a recent extempore speech which was open to misinterpretation. Colonel Moore-Brabazon's views on Russia are those recently announced by him in public at Chertsey. His words then were: 'Everyone fighting there was fighting Britain's battle, and for that reason they should give all the help they could. By helping them they were helping themselves; for every life sacrificed against the Nazis was being lost in fighting our battle.'"

MR. TANNER'S CHARGE

Mr. Tanner, speaking on a resolution pledging trade union aid to Russia, said: "There are people in high places who declare that they hope the Russian and German Armies will exterminate each other, and while this is taking place we, the British Comonwealth of Nations, will so develop our Air Force and other armed forces that if Russia and Germany do destroy each other we shall have the dominating power in Europe. That point of view has been expressed quite recently by a Cabinet Minister—a members of the present Government, a gentleman who holds a very important position—none other than the Minister for Aircraft Production, Colonel Moore-Brabazon.

"I think everyone will agree that such an attitude is a terrible danger, and it is a crime against the people of this country and the people of Russia. If Russia succeeds we succeed. If Russia fails we fail. (Cries of "No.") We must let it be known that we will defeat any plot which might be in process of formation that will withhold full and adequate aid to our allies, and, if necessary, smash any person who is responsible for such a policy. The impression is still very strong that certain elements desire to switch the war against Russia. I hope the Government will remove from its ranks those who are reactionary and irresponsible enough to make the statements they have, and, in effect, desire the defeat of the Soviet Union."

SIR W. CITRINE'S VIEW

Sir Walter Citrine, in reply, said:—"I was startled at Mr. Tanner's statement. I have known that there are people in high places who do not agree either with the Soviet system or with what happens in Russia generally. I have never heard myself any evidence that would have caused me to think that anyone was ready deliberately to sabotage the efforts which this country is making to give help to Russia. Mr. Tanner, of course, did not go so far as to say that, but it is a very serious position if the fact can be substantiated."

Mr. Tanner—I can.

Sir Walter Citrine—I think you are bound to be called upon to substantiate it. I do not think Mr. Tanner would have made that statement without satisfying himself he could. I feel sure that the person impugned will have to pursue the matter, and I feel I had better not make any comment beyond saying that it is an extraordinary situation if such a statement can be made by a Cabinet Minister in a Government whose Prime Minister has so fully pledged this country to render every possible help to Soviet Russia.

ALL AID TO RUSSIA

Reference to the proof which Russia has given of her readiness to make great sacrifices and of her determination to resist to the end evoked cheers from delegates.

The conference adopted unanimously a resolution pledging all trade union aid to Russia and endorsing the General Council's proposal for the setting up of an Anglo-Soviet Trade Union Council.

Sir Walter Citrine, while enthusiastic about the Russian Army and people, made it clear that the General Council would have nothing to do with the British Communist Party. After a tribute to the Russian military commanders, he said:—

"We are not prepared to collaborate in any measure or degree with the British Communist Party," he said. "We are not prepared to sacrifice our independence of judgment. I want to make it clear that the General Council will take great care that its support for the Russian nation is not diverted or prostituted by political protagonists, who may divert it to other purposes."

Both the General Secretary and Mr. Attlee emphasised the significance of the Atlantic charter. In the opinion of the Lord Privy Seal it had an immense importance for the future of humanity. Meantime, however, the struggle to assure this future had not yet been won.

PLEA FOR COMPLETE CONFIDENCE

Mr. H. N. Harrison (General and Municipal Workers and member of the General Council) moved a resolution, which was carried, calling on the Government to regard the manning of industry as of equal importance with man-power for the fighting services, and to associate the trade unions concerned with the administration and management of all vital war industries. Mr. Attlee, he said, had called for greater production. "If they want more they must take our people into their complete confidence. I am a member of the Admiralty Advisory Committee," he said, "and we have never been told what their programme is. How can they expect men to give of their best when they don't know what they have got to give? If we have to be subjected to the abuse we are getting about absenteeism and slacking, the resentment that exists now will become a revolt."

The Congress adjourned until to-day.

RAIDS ON ITALY AND SICILY

WIDESPREAD BRITISH AIR ACTIVITY

TO-DAY'S accounts of British air activity range from Libya to Italy and Sicily, and thence to an attack on a supply ship off Dunkirk.

The Royal Air Force Headquarters, Middle East, communiqué last night stated:—

"Libya.—Heavy bomber aircraft of the Royal Air Force carried out another raid on the harbour and shipping at Tripoli during the night of August 31 to September 1. A merchant vessel was hit and believed to be sunk, while another ship was left ablaze from stem to stern. Our aircraft also machine-gunned the road and railway west of Tripoli, and aerodrome buildings at Mellaha. A number of fires broke out near the railway station.

"Other bombers of the Royal Air Force and the South African Air Force attacked shipping in Benghazi Harbour, which was again raided by heavy bombers later in the night. Part of the attacking formation flew through the harbour defences at a low level, and bombs were observed to fall close to shipping.

"The landing ground at Ras el Tin, the harbour at Bardia and store dumps at Gambut were bombed by aircraft of the Fleet Air Arm taking part in these operations.

"Italy and Sicily.—Aircraft of the Fleet Air Arm bombed and machine-gunned aircraft on the ground at Gherbini and Comiso during the night of August 31 to September 1. Fires, visible many miles from the target, were started among aircraft at Comiso.

"Yesterday fighter and bomber aircraft of the Royal Air Force attacked Pozzallo and Crotone. At Pozzallo our fighters machine-gunned a train whose engine was last seen emitting volumes of flames and steam. At Crotone, shipping, munition factories and the railway were bombed. Direct hits on three buildings caused violent explosions, followed by a sheet of yellow flame, and clouds of blue-black smoke. A merchantman was hit by three bombs and developed a fire towards the stern. The quays and a seaplane flying in the vicinity were also attacked.

"From these operations two of our aircraft are missing."

BLENHEIMS ATTACK SUPPLY SHIP

This morning Blenheims of the Bomber Command, escorted by fighters, made a low-level attack on an enemy supply ship off Dunkirk. The vessel, which was protected by six anti-aircraft ships and four E-boats, was hit twice and left enveloped in smoke.

"Two Messerschmitt 109's were destroyed by our fighters. One Blenheim is missing."

"No enemy aircraft appeared to intercept the Royal Air Force machines, and successful bomb hits were reported by our pilots in the face of heavy 'flak' from escort ships and shore batteries," says the Air Ministry News Service.

"Pilots of a Hurricane fighter squadron, also taking part, dived, and set one of the escorting 'flak' ships on fire. Other Hurricanes silenced the guns on another 'flak' ship.

"On the return ourney two Messerschmitt 109s were seen protecting E boats. The Hurricane squadrons set one of the E boats on fire, and two of our pilots were attacked by the Messerchmitts, but they were driven off.

"Immediately afterwards, two Messerschmitts—probably the same ones—tried to attack a section of the Australian squadron. The Australian pilots' reports say that both were shot down into the sea."

NORTHERN IRELAND RULED BY SIX MEN

Labour Member's Allegation

MR. J. BEATTIE (Lab.) objected to the adournment of the Northern House of Commons yesterday for a week, and declared that there was a council within the Government which was a greater menace to parliamentary government than ever Hitler was. They had now come to the position where six men were ruling Northern Ireland.

These men were becoming agents of a power in Great Britain, and the representatives of the people were being denied any hand in what was being done. Democracy did not exist within the confines of the Northern Cabinet; it was dictatorship from beginning to end.

"OUTRAGEOUS THINGS"

Mr. J. W. Nixon (Independent Unionist) declared that nothing had been done for the people blitzed out of their houses in Belfast last May. It was now September, and the Government had not done anything for them. Outrageous things were happening throughout Northern Ireland in the matter of rents being charged to evacuees, but still nothing had been done to put a stop to the atrocities of those making money out of other people's misery.

"FED UP"

Mr. T Henderson (Independent Unionist) said they only met in this Parliament for about twenty-five days in a year. He was becoming fed up with this show altogether. They might as well not be sitting at all, because Northern Ireland was being run from across the water. People blitzed out of Belfast were paying 30s. a week for pigstys and henhouses in the Prime Minister's constituency in County Down. The evacuation scheme had failed, and children were coming back to Belfast. In Eire representatives of the electors were given time to discuss all such matters.

Mr. Edmond Warnock, K.C. (Unionist) said that if they allowed interest in their Parliament to decline, then their institution would also decay. They had just to look at the standard of debate in the House. Three or four members of the Opposition monopolised the time of the House.

The Government members did not speak, although there were matters ripe for discussion and long overdue. The public had not been instructed as to its duty in regard to evacuation, and the House was kept in ignorance of the Government's evacuation plans, they had quite enough of the "not in the national interest" excuse for Government silence.

PRIME MINISTER'S REPLY

Mr. J. Andrews, Prime Minister, said that the Government had no wish to control the rights of members to express their views, and if the House wished to meet more often next week he would consider the matter. Sometimes, however, speeches were made by Opposition members which were neither helpful nationally nor locally, and were liable to create in the public mind a wrong impression of the true position.

Dealing with evacuation and re-housing, the Prime Minister said that the Government was not responsible because the Germans bombed Belfast. The Government was erecting huts for those bombed out. The people did not avail themselves of evacuation facilities; sometimes evacuees unfortunately were not welcomed in reception areas. However, the Government had taken over houses and every large hotel.

DUBLIN'S NEW SHELTERS

ACCOMMODATION FOR 30,000 PEOPLE

About 600 more air-raid shelters are to be erected in the Dublin metropolitan area. Only a little over a hundred reinforced concrete overground shelters so far have been built, and these, with the numerous private basement shelters, could not accommodate more than 35,000 citizens out of the city's half-million inhabitants.

When the fury of the war again flames westward, we know not what mischance may involve us in death and destruction-dealing blitzes from above the clouds. We have had evidence of the obliterating power of even a single bomb. Obviously the existing air-raid shelter accommodation is inadequate in face of our accidental experiences. The further 600 shelters, which it is contemplated to build in populous areas, would provide safety for some 30,000 people. This provision, in conjunction with fully-carried-out evacuation schemes, would be adequate. At any rate, it is a plan that, when completed, will be commensurate with the provision already in being in other big cities elsewhere.

In this connection, indicating how our City Fathers and their far-seeing City Manager are taking time by the forelock, was the fact gleaned by the Irish Times reporter that future building plans are to be bent to serve the purpose of life-saving in the event of air bomb attacks. It is understood that, although actual building is almost impossible owing to circumstances over which there is no control, it is contemplated to proceed with the laying of the concrete foundations of storeyed block flat dwellings in certain populous central sites, and that these concrete foundations will be so designed as immediately to be of service as additional air-raid shelters.

Already this idea of utilising the foundations of blocks of flat dwellings as bomb shelters has been put into effect at James's street, and the foundations of another big block of flat dwellings are being cleared to make an air-raid shelter for the tenants. The roofs of the concrete foundations are level with the ground surface and next the ground floors of the dwellings. The roofs and walls of the foundations are being strengthened, and easy access made to the sheltering space underground.

Housing schemes may have been hanging fire as a consequence of the situation in the building trade, but it was learned that, if the town-planning authorities expedite the business of the choice of sites, many of these proposed concrete foundations could soon come into being as much-needed air-raid shelters.

THE INCREASED BANK CHARGES

NORTHERN MINISTER SEEKS INFORMATION

The Minister of Commerce (Sir Basil Brooke) informed Mr. Rowley Elliott (U.), in the Northern House of Commons yesterday, that on the information at his disposal he could not express any opinion on the justification for the proposed increases in Irish bank charges. He was informed, however, that the fee charged by English banks on accounts involving a large number of transactions was normally greater than was provided for in the recent circular. He was in communication with the banks to obtain further information.

Bray and Tipperary Urban Councils have protested against the increased charges.

FIRMER POLICY TOWARDS U.S.

PLEA TO JAPANESE CABINET

WASHINGTON, Tuesday.—Although official secrecy still completely blankets the United States-Japanese talks, unofficial observers here are far from optimistic, and fail to see what terms for a settlement Washington can offer Japan which Tokyo could force its leaders to accept.

Meanwhile a plea for a firmer policy on the part of Japan towards the United States was contained in a resolution handed to-day to Prince Konoye, the Japanese Premier. It was submitted by General Hayashi and the Nationalist deputy, Kuytaro Nagai, on behalf of the Japanese Imperial League for New East Asia. The resolution urged that Japan's policy should be founded on loyal adherence to the Tripartite Pact; the continuation of the policy for the creation of a new order in the Far East; the continuation of the struggle against Marshal Chiang Kai-shek and anyone coming to his aid; an invocation of Japan's rights of self-defence in Japanese waters.

GERMANY ANXIOUS

ZURICH, Tuesday.—Anxiety is felt in Germany about Japan's present attitude towards the world situation, says the Berlin correspondent of the Basler Nachrichten, because reports are circulating that Mr. Matsuoka, one of the sponsors of the Tripartite Pact with the Axis, resigned from the post of Foreign Minister in favour of Admiral Toyoda to give the later an opportunity of bringing about a Japanese-American understanding. Admiral Toyoda has always been an advocate of good relations with the United States.—(Reuter.)

JAPAN'S PLANS

TOKYO, Tuesday. — Noting that President Roosevelt made no direct reference to Japan in his broadcast last night, the Japan Times and Advertiser, organ of the Japanese Foreign Office, comments to-day:—"This does not mean that Japan has been kept out of the reckoning or that the United States has acquiesced in Japan's views."

The paper contradicts the President's assertion that the United States has no aggressive intentions, and declares that aid for Chiang Kai-shek "is obviously aggressive and warlike."

The formation of an "ocean safety zone" around Japan, presumably similar to the Western Hemisphere defence zone, was reported in Tokyo to-day to be under consideration by the Premier, Prince Konoye, as the first United States vessel bearing aviation spirit for the Soviet Union approached Japanese territorial waters. Vessels bound for the Soviet port of Vladivostok must pass through Japanese territorial waters via the Straits of Soya or Tsugaru.—(Reuter.)

Japanese taxis and omnibuses were running to-day on natural gas and charcoal, petrol being forbidden to them under an ordinance which came into force yesterday.—(Associated Press.)

LIVE-STOCK EXPORT TRADE

Replying to the request of the Galway Harbour Commissioners that he should have received a deputation representing the Commissioners, the Galway Corporation and the County Council, with a view to making a case for the allocating to Galway port of a share of the live-stock export trade, An Taoiseach informed the Commissioners, in a letter read at their meeting yesterday, that, owing to the existence of foot-and-mouth disease in this country, the importation into Great Britain of live-stock from Eire was controlled by the British authorities.

"As the Commissioners will realise," the letter added, "the acceptance of stock from other ports is a matter which has to be decided by the British authorities, and, as a result of inquiries which have been made, it is considered unlikely that any representations in connection with Galway port would be successful. The Taoiseach, therefore, does not consider that any useful purpose would be served by putting a deputation to the trouble and expense of coming to Dublin to see him, as proposed."

COAL RATIONING IN THE NORTH?

The possibility of coal rationing in Northern Ireland was foreshadowed in the Northern Parliament yesterday, when the Minister of Commerce (Sir Basil Brooke, Bart.), replying to a question by Mr. J. Brown (Industries and Farmers), said that arrangements were being made to provide adequate supplies of coal for public utility undertakings, industrial undertakings and institutions, but it was not improbable that in Northern Ireland, as in Great Britain, a measure of rationing may prove necessary for domestic consumers.

DISTRIBUTION OF CEREALS

PERSONNEL OF NEW COMMITTEE

The names of the new Cereals Distribution Committee recently appointed by the Minister for Agriculture, were published in last night's Iris Oifigiuil. The purposes of the new body are (a) to advise the Minister on matters relative to the assembling and distribution of the oats and barley crops of the present harvest, and (b) to act as the Minister's agent in giving directions for the disposal of the oats and barley purchased by holders of oats and barley dealers' licences.

The members of the Committee are: Henry Kennedy, M.A., D.Sc. (Chairman), I.A.O.S.; William Boydell, M.A. (Messrs. John Plunkett and Co., Ltd., Dublin); Patrick F. Cannon, Ballymacarney, Kilsallaghan, County Meath; Frank P. Hallinan, Cork Milling Co., Ltd., Cork; Thomas Jordan, Enniscoe, Crossmolina, County Mayo; John J. Keane (Messrs. C. Dodd and Son, Dublin); Maurice A. Kelliher (Messrs. Kelliher and Sons, Ltd., Tralee); Edward Maher (Dungarvan Co-operative Creamery, Ltd.); Sidney B. Minch, Levitstown House, Athy; James J. Stafford, Junior (Messrs. J. J. Stafford and Sons, Wexford); Harry P. Swan (Messrs. Thomas Swan and Co., Ltd.), Buncrana, County Donegal; George Watson (Messrs. Paul and Vincent, Ltd., Dublin).

GAYDA'S REPLY TO ROOSEVELT

To President Roosevelt's declaration, "We don't covet one square inch of the territory of any other nation," Virginio Gayda replies in yesterday's Giornale d'Italia, a Reuter telegram from Rome says.

The President has forgotten all too soon that the power and wealth of his country are the result of a series of aggressions and robberies.

He pretended to be ignorant of the fact that the present policy of the United States concerning the British Empire and the nations of Central and South America, is aimed solely at making fresh territorial acquisitions.

Gayda, also invites the President to "tell us whether it is Britain who is fighting in the Mediterranean for freedom of the seas—Britain, who holds the keys to this sea and keeps the Mediterranean peoples shut up in a sort of prison—or Italy, who is trying to get recognition of her right to free access to the ocean."

LAND GIRLS IN THE NORTH

M.P. SAYS—"END THIS FARCE"

Dr. Maginess, Parliamentary Secretary to the Ministry of Agriculture, replying, in the Northern House of Commons yesterday, to Mr. J. W. Nixon (Independent), said that 32 girls had attended a course of training in farm work. Some had joined the Land Army, several had got married, and others were engaged in other forms of national service. Recruiting for the Woman's Land Army was being continued. These women were paid 27s. per week, less 15s. per week for board and lodging.

Mr. Rowley Elliott (U.) asked where farmers could obtain the services of these land girls.

Mr. Nixon—Is it not a fact that a considerable number of farm labourers are unemployed, and is it not a waste of public money training these girls to get married?

"Will the Minister consider putting an end to this farce about land girls in Northern Ireland?" asked Mr. Edmond Warnock, K.C. (U.).

No reply was returned to these supplementary questions, and Major Gordon (U.) asked if the Government would consider appointing an additional Parliamentary Secretary to answer the questions.

Replying to a question by Mr. J. Brown, the Parliamentary Secretary (Dr. Maginess) said that the military authorities were co-operating in supplying soldiers to assist with the harvest.

U.S. TO SPEND MORE ON DEFENCE

PRESIDENT'S STATEMENT

WASHINGTON, Tuesday.

The United States is to "step up its defence production by spending more money and turning out more products," President Roosevelt asserted at his Press Conference in Washington yesterday.

He said that this must be done for the "national safety."

Mr. Roosevelt added that he might have the new Lease-Lend programme ready by the end of this week or the beginning of next. Congressional quarters have foreshadowed that the amount will approximate 5,000,000,000 dollars (about £1,250,000,000).

The increase in defence expenditure, Mr. Roosevelt indicated, would be achieved through over-all appropriations rather than the Lease-Lend Fund, but he could not say how much additional spending was contemplated. He added that he was not yet ready to send a request message to Congress, but one would be sent soon—"any time before January 1."

FROM "THE TIMES"

(BY SPECIAL ARRANGEMENT.)

THE SECOND YEAR

The Times in a leading article to-day says:—

The anniversaries of this war are reminders of the immensity of its successive transformations—as measured by the scale of that other war, in which the lapse of a year might do no more than sway the interlocked armies over a few miles between Mons and Loos. Looking back now from our perspective vantage point to September 3rd, 1940, we have to adjust our perspective from an eastern battle front of 2,000 miles to a phase at which the whole focus of destiny was poised upon the English Channel and its shores—whither it will, doubtless, some day return. At that date the prospect of the future still lay in the black shadow cast by that shattering cataclysm, the over-throw of France and the universal preoccupation was with our chances of staving off the military conquest of our island until winter should bring respite and time for recuperation. All England knew that our situation was precarious; in the highest degree most of the world believed it to be desperate.

The fighter pilots of the Royal Air Forces were, indeed, nearing victory in the battle for the mastery of the daylight air over our own shores which was to foil the plans of the invader, but the perilous smallness of their numbers, which multiplied their glory, threatened all the time that mere exhaustion might in the end make their wonderful fight abortive. Very early, however, in the new year of war the enemy owned himself defeated in the daylight battle, and drew off his forces, to resume the attack in another form.

EXPORT LICENCES TO BRITAIN

The British Board of Trade announce these additions to the classes of goods requiring separate licences when imported from Eire, with effect from September 23:—

Onions, including shallots, all fresh and preserved fruit not already subject to separate licences.

Applications for licences in duplicate should be made to the Food Ministry, St. John's College, Oxford.

MAXIMUM PRICES OF TALLOWS

The Minister for Supplies has made an Order fixing the maximum prices for home-produced tallows and greases (excluding dripping), as and from the 3rd September, 1941, at the prices set out in the notice in advertisement column.

TEN LOST IN FERRY 'PLANE

Professor Robert Balmain Mowat, Professor of History at Bristol University, and Count Baillet-Latour, Economic Counsellor in London to the Belgian Minister for Colonies, were among the six passengers in the R.A.F. ferry 'plane from America reported missing by the British Air Ministry yesterday.

The 'plane, which was due to reach Britain yesterday, also carried a crew of four.

A Reuter telegram from Montreal last night stated:—The R.A.F. ferry 'plane which was lost while on its way to Britain from America yesterday crashed into a hillside in the United Kingdom, announced the R.A.F. Ferry Commander here to-day.

There were no survivors.

The officers of the 'plane were Captain K. D. Garden and First Officer G. L. Panes, both of British Airways, who had been seconded to the Ministry of Aircraft Production for Atlantic ferrying duty.

The other passengers of the ferry 'plane were said to be Mr. E. Taylor, of Farnborough, Hants, principal technical officer of the Air Ministry; Captain S. Pickering, of the United States Navy; Colonel L. H. Wrangham, Imperial Army, and Dr. Mark Benjamin, of Wembley, from the Central Scientific Office, Washington.

The Montreal message describes the other members of the crew as Radio Officer Samuel Walter Sydenham, of Edmonton, Alberta, and Flight Engineer Charles Alvan Spence, of Little Neck, New York.

A British Air Ministry bulletin, issued shortly before 11 o'clock last night, stated:—"A transport aircraft of the R.A.F. Ferry Command, which was reported earlier to-day as being missing has been found wrecked in an isolated and mountainous district on the west coast.

"All the occupants have lost their lives."

BRITAIN TO TAKE MORE IRISH MEAT

An increase of 200 tons per week—from 600 to 800 tons—has been arranged by the British Ministry of Food for shipments of fresh meat from Eire.

Yesterday's increase is the second in a few weeks. Shipments were increased from 480 to 600 a week last month.

The new increase will to some extent relieve the congestion of prime stock in Eire ready for slaughter.

THE DUN LAOGHAIRE SLAUGHTERHOUSES

A letter was received from the Department of Agriculture at the meeting of Dun Laoghaire Borough Council last night stating that the proposal of six slaughterhouses for the borough would not be sufficient to supply the meat requirements of the area, and that the veterinary inspector could not carry out the necessary supervision.

Mr. P. Belton, T.D., stated that meat bearing the stamp of Carlow County Council was being sold secretly in the borough. He suggested that a special meeting be convened, and that the butchers be asked to attend.

The suggestion was adopted.

IN MEMORIAM.

BATEMAN—In undying memory of Captain Reginald John Godfrey Bateman, 46th Battalion Canadian Infantry (Professor of English at the University of Saskatchewan), killed in action near Drury, September 3rd, 1918. "There is no better way a man can die. Most deaths are somewhat inglorious endings to not very glorious careers; no war like this gives a man a chance to cancel at one stroke all the pettiness of his life." (From a letter to a brother in April, 1917.)

FEE—In loving memory of mother, called Home 3rd September, 1940.—Ethel.

GRANT—In proud and loving memory of Stanley Chadwick Grant, 2nd Battalion, Royal Irish Regiment, who fell in action at Bunchy, Somme, Sunday, 3rd September, 1916 (his 22nd birthday).
Not just to-day, but every day,
Loved and remembered. —Mother.

ROUNDTREE—In sweet and abiding recollection of my loving mother, Sarah Jane Roundtree, who died September 3rd, 1935.—Isaac.

ZORN—In fond remembrance of Victor Zorn, who died September 3rd, 1934.—Phœbe.

EMERGENCY POWERS (CONTROL OF EXPORT) (AMENDMENT) (NO. 10) ORDER, 1941.

The Minister for Supplies has made an Order, entitled as above, prohibiting the export, except under licence, of fruit of the following descriptions: Apples, currants, gooseberries, grapes, plums (including damsons and greengages), raspberries, strawberries, together with pulp or juice of any of the foregoing descriptions of fruit; cement and manufactures thereof; sacks, bags, wrappers or other containers (whether full or empty) made wholly or mainly of any one or more of the following materials, viz.: jute, hemp, cotton, sisal and flax. Applications for licences in the case of fruit, and also in the case of bags, sacks, wrappers or other containers containing goods for which an export licence is required from the Department of Agriculture, should be addressed to the Secretary, Department of Agriculture, Upper Merrion street, Dublin, and in the case of the other commodities to the Secretary, Department of Supplies, 13/14 Earlsfort terrace, Dublin.

The Order also provides that textiles shall be removed from the category of private effects for the purposes of export control. The export of textiles is already prohibited except under licence, and the effect of the provision now made is that exports of these articles, which would not be permissible in the ordinary course, cannot now be effected by including them in the luggage of a passenger or traveller leaving this country, or by means of the parcels' post.

Copies of the Order will be on sale shortly.

MAKING A PLAY

TO THE EDITOR OF THE IRISH TIMES.

SIR,—Mr. Lennox Robinson is reported in your issue of September 2nd as having said in his lecture on play-making: "The producer was the brains, the stage manager the hands, and his staff the fingers of the organisation producing a play."

In de Bourrienne's Memoirs of Napoleon there is a passage somewhat like this:

Napoleon: "Well, Bourrienne, you, too, will be immortal."

Bourrienne: "Why, General?"

Napoleon: "Are you not my secretary?"

Bourrienne: "Tell me the name of Alexander's!"

Tell me the name of Shakespeare's producer.—Yours, etc.,

WEDNESDAY, SEPTEMBER 3, 1941.

Two Years

Two years ago to-day Great Britain and France declared war on Germany. Two days previously, on the first day of September, the Germans had invaded Poland, and when, on that fateful Sunday morning, the late Mr. Neville Chamberlain broadcast the Allies' decision to the world, few people can have been taken by surprise. The two years that have passed since that autumn morning when, in the midst of a fierce thunderstorm, the people of Dublin listened to the British Premier's statement, have been two of the most momentous years in the world's history. Within a few weeks of the outbreak of war Poland was overwhelmed. Her Army and Air Force fought gallantly, but they were no match for Germany's mighty legions, which proved to the world within less than a month that the bravest man was almost powerless when faced with mechanised force. In those days, which seem now to be so far off, few believed that a war waged by modern methods could last for two years. Just as twenty-five years previously Europe had become convinced by the arguments of Norman Angell's "Great Illusion" that flesh and blood could not withstand more than a limited amount of concentrated suffering, millions of intelligent persons in the autumn of 1939 took the view that a war, organised according to the principles of the Blitzkrieg, must be over within a few months. With few exceptions—which happened to include the late Lord Kitchener—the prophets of 1914 were wrong; for the last war lasted for over four years. With possibly even fewer exceptions, the prophets of 1939 were equally wrong; for, after two years, there seem to be no hopes of an early peace. On the contrary, the real struggle, between Germany and the British Empire, hardly can be said to have started. It has been a war of continuous surprises. After the conquest of Poland, there was a long lull during which both sides merely marked time. During the winter of 1939 there was no sign of a desire by either set of belligerents to force the pace. The French seemed to be entirely secure behind the shelter of their Maginot Line, and the British were almost equally confident in their immunity from attack, when, some sixteen months ago, the blow fell. Norway and Denmark were invaded. The Low Countries succumbed within a few weeks, and, to the world's complete surprise, France collapsed after less than a month's fighting. Almost before anybody had had time to realise what was happening, the Germans were masters of Western Europe, and France's proud Republic was a thing of the past. Almost as if by a miracle, the British Army was saved from annihilation at Dunkirk; and just twelve months ago the Germans began their aerial assaults on London and other British centres. The events of the past year have passed into history. The Balkans have been conquered by the Germans. Rumania and Bulgaria have become partners in the "Axis" group. Yugoslavia and Greece have been crushed; even in North Africa the German Army and Luftwaffe have achieved notable successes. Yet peace seems to-day to be just as far off as it was two years ago. Once again the powers of human endurance have confounded all the prophets.

He would be a brave man who would attempt to forecast the events of the next two years. The whole complexion of the war was changed less than three months ago, when the Germans suddenly decided to invade Soviet Russia, thereby precipitating what most military experts believed that the German High Command was most anxious to avoid—namely, a war on two fronts. Here again everybody was taken by surprise. The vast majority of people—including nearly all the experts—believed that the Russians would be unable to stand up for more than a couple of weeks against the hammer blows of Marshal von Runstedt's armies; after ten weeks of fighting at a tempo hitherto unknown in military history the Soviet forces still are virtually intact. Leningrad, Kiev and Moscow still are in Russian hands; and, although the Germans undoubtedly have made impressive advances, particularly in the South, there are no signs of an immediate Russian collapse. It was believed generally that the Germans hoped to overwhelm Russia, as they had overwhelmed France, and, having secured their rear, to settle their long account with Great Britain before the end of the present year. Even the British Prime Minister warned his people to expect a German invasion during September. Soviet Russia was the unknown quantity in the European equation, and even now the issue in the East is undecided. For nearly twelve weeks the people of Great Britain have been given a respite from aerial attacks. They have been importing large quantities of war material from the United States, and there can be no doubt that they are far stronger to-day than they were three months ago to withstand an attempted invasion. What will happen in the next few months—even in the next few weeks? No man can answer that question. The British have consolidated their position in the Near and Middle East. They have taken possession of Syria, and, to a large extent, of Iran. Unless something in the nature of a miracle happens, Egypt is safe from invasion for the time being. So far as the average man can see, therefore—and we repeat that nothing could be more foolish than prophecy—there is little chance of an end of hostilities before next year. What will happen to the peoples of Europe in the meanwhile? Here in neutral Eire, a little country which happily has been spared most of the direct horrors of modern warfare, the pinch of economic distress already is beginning to be felt. Ireland will know dire distress this winter; and, if her lot is bad, what can be said of that of the belligerents? The cost of the war in terms of pounds, shillings and pence is formidable; in terms of human suffering it is appalling. Fuel will be short in Ireland; how will the peoples of Central Europe keep themselves warm during the winter months? If communal feeding is necessary in Dublin, who will feed the inhabitants of Paris, of Warsaw, of Berlin, of Brussels and of Bucharest? The outlook for the next six months or so may be bad in this country; it is infinitely worse in most of the other countries on the Continent of Europe. Wars cannot be waged for nothing; and it always is the poorest people who must foot the dreadful bill.

Marche Militaire

We fear that the more discerning among our readers may have been provoked by the extreme brevity of a paragraph which appeared in this newspaper yesterday morning. It implied so much, and it explained so little. The Urban Council of Enniskillen, it said, by one vote had "permitted a military band concert on a Sunday in aid of military charities." Here, already, a question arises. Is "on a Sunday" to be construed as meaning on some particular Sunday, or on Sundays generally—as one might say, "of a Sunday?" The mystery deepens as the report draws to its brief close, revealing that the Council had "refused the general public permission to attend." Who, in these circumstances, will constitute the lucky audience, or audiences? Will it (or they) be confined to members of His Majesty's Forces; and, if so, is it not a little hard that His Majesty's Forces alone shall be permitted to contribute to their own charities, while the same—surely most praiseworthy—privilege is denied to the general public? It is conceivable that among those privileged to attend in addition to the military proper, will be reckoned all who are engaged in "war work," or "national service," or whatever is the current phrase; and, upon this interpretation, even more complex considerations arise. Will munition-workers, if such happen to be in Enniskillen, either as residents or visitors, on the joyous Sunday morning (or mornings) be entitled to pay their entrance money and take seats in the auditorium? What will be the position of members of the Local Defence Volunteers, land-girls, employés of the Censor's Office, the Ladies Bountiful who help to operate canteens for the troops, and the other Ladies Bountiful who knit socks for the troops, all of whom, with greater or less reason, take pride in their contribution to the "national effort"? Will admission be denied to the farmers and farm-workers who, according to Minister after Minister, British and Northern Irish alike, stand in the front line of defence? It is not our part to interpret the minds of the urban councillors of Enniskillen; instead, we may venture a single comment. If they have stretched their consciences so far—albeit by a majority of one—as to sanction Sunday entertainment for the soldiers, could they not have gone a trifle farther and given them something rather less in the nature of a busman's holiday than—a military band?

AN IRISHMAN'S DIARY

The Joys of Cycling

A colleague who has lately taken to the push-bicycle, like so many other worthy citizens, thus rhapsodises:—

Trams and 'buses I regard merely as lowly objects behind which I can find protection from a head-wind. Pedestrians I view as inferior creatures, while trains—once the joy of my travelling hours—are now but obstructions which prevent me from crossing the railway line at level crossings.

My field of knowledge has extended, and now I talk of cranks and cones and saddles and spokes with all the ease and confidence of the experienced cyclist. As yet no punctures have swum into my ken, but I am awaiting this event with a thrill of anticipation, prepared to rise above it at all costs.

I now see the police in a completely new light. When I have remembered to put my light on my bike, I smile complacently at them as I glide past, experiencing a glow of virtue. On other occasions, when I find that my lamp is not working—because I have broken the bulb or someone has "borrowed" my battery—I am a different being, and hurtle past the Guards with a lawless gleam in my eyes, and a pious prayer in my heart.

So far, my prayer has been answered, but sooner or later, I suppose, I will discover that crime does not pay.

"Your Gas-Mask, Sir?"

The following information comes from 20th Century Productions, Ltd.:—

Max Adrian, the Irish actor who gave the amusing performance of the smooth-tongued Coote in "Kipps," is currently appearing as Sheridan, the 18th century dramatist, in "The Young Mr. Pitt."

Lately, between shots, he has been acting as commentator on "shorts" being produced in another part of the building. Walking to the studio this week, a mammoth voice spoke behind him, saying: "That gentleman walking up the road in the blue suit; where is your gas mask, sir?"

It was from a loud-speaker engaged on a gas mask campaign at Shepherd's Bush.

Max Adrian slunk guiltily into the studio. Only he knew at that very moment he was on his way to comment on a Government "short," urging the public to carry their gas masks!

The Beef Steak Club

The snuff-box, mentioned in the "Diary," was presented (a correspondent writes) to the sixth Earl of Rathdowne to commemorate the birth of his heir on 26th July, 1823.

From early in the eighteenth century Beefsteak Clubs flourished in London. They were formed for social intercourse, and refreshment was limited to steaks and beer and wines. One such club enjoyed the high-sounding title, "The Sublime Society of Steaks." Usually their membership was restricted to the chief wits, writers and actors of the day. Garrick, Wilks Hogarth and Kemble were all prominent "Beefsteakers."

The original Beefsteak Club in Ireland was founded by Thomas Sheridan, father of Richard Brinsley, and manager of the Smock Alley Theatre, in 1749. It began with about fifty members, composed mostly of the nobility and members of Parliament, about thirty of whom attended the inaugural "steak" dinner in Sheridan's apartment at the theatre; and, although it was called a "club," Sheridan, as we can quite believe, bore the whole cost of the hospitality.

The First President

The foundation members of the first Beefsteak Club in Dublin were chosen for their genius and their position in the world of letters; but, unlike similar clubs at the London theatres, no performer—with a single, notable exception—was admitted.

The exception was Peg Woffington, who was elected unanimously to be the president for the first season. Seated in a throne-like chair at the head of a big table, she dispensed hospitality—at Sheridan's expense.

Benjamin Victor, contemporaneous as assistant to the manager at the theatre, wrote, in his "History of the Stage," that a new club where there were such good accommodations and company, so lovely a president, so much wit and spirit, must soon grow remarkably fashionable; and that it did so.

In another place Victor disillusionises his readers: "I knew," he wrote, "the manager's private sentiments towards that lady, which tallied with my own—viz., that she had captivating charms as a jovial bottle-companion, but few remaining as a mere female."

"Not Delivered"

I am told that the new tenants of an old house were not receiving all their letters, and, having appealed to the authorities without result, examined the hall-door. Removing the letter-box, they observed a slit in the door, which revealed something like paper.

On detaching two panels they found more than a dozen letters, post-cards, private cards and circulars dated, with sometimes intervals of ten years, from 1840 up to a fortnight ago.

He had 22 international caps and had first played for Rovers, he said, in 1924.

Good Fields for Naas To-Day

Train Kingsbridge, 12.30.

VISITORS to Naas this afternoon can travel by the ordinary train from Kingsbridge at 12.30, and return by the horse box train, to which will be attached first and third-class carriages.

Eighty-four horses have been declared as runners, and there is every promise of high-class racing. Sammy's Rock will be an absentee from the field for the Westmeath Two Years Old Handicap, but his stable companion, Brownstown, will likely prove a worthy substitute. He may not, however, concede 14lb. to Nocturne, who dead-heated for second place with Tayanglet behind King's Approach at the Curragh last Saturday. No less than twenty runners have been declared for the Waterford Two Years Old Plate, which is for maidens.

Tote Double on Third and Fifth Races.

Miller has been there or thereabouts in several races of good class company, and it looks as if his turn to win has now arrived. Miss D. Paget runs both Golden Jack and Tanya's Knight in the Meath Steeplechase, and the better of the two will take some beating, but preference is for Bistro.

The Wicklow Handicap Hurdle Race has an open appearance, and may be won by Puck Fair if Mr. T. Morrison's horse is considered better than his stable companion, Soldier Bill. Glenapp has only to step up on his second to Soldado at the Curragh to win the Wexford Plate, and Zog, who finished second to Coupe, also at the Curragh, may win the Kilkenny Plate. Selections:—

Wicklow Hurdle—Puck Fair.
Waterford Plate—Miller.
Wexford Plate—Glenapp.
Westmeath Plate—Nocturne.
Meath Steeplechase—Bistro.
Kilkenny Plate—Zog.

GATE THEATRE

Oscar Wilde's delightful comedy, "The Importance of Being Earnest," which opened last week at the Gate Theatre, is being retained for a further period. The production is a tribute to Longford Productions, who treat the piece with just the required lightness of touch.
Michael Ripper's interpretation of the principal part was excellent, and Cathleen Delany, in the rôle of the Hon. Gwendolen Fairfax and Vivien Dillon, as Cecily Cardew were both well cast; and Ann Penhallow, as Lady Bracknell, was suitably overpowering.
Others taking part are Nora O'Mahony and John Izon. The production is in the capable hands of Gerald Pringle, and the settings are by Carl Bonn, who also designed and executed the women's costumes, assisted by Nancy Beckh.

German Radio said R.A.F. raids caused 3,853 deaths, and injured 9,445 in Germany from the beginning of the war until August 29.—(Associated Press.)
